Swamptails—Casual Drinks for the Environmental Set

Relax after work and have fun with the Great Swamp Watershed Association at George & Martha's American Grille.

Morristown, NJ—Have questions about the effects of global warming and sea-level rise in New Jersey? Want to talk about how Hurricane Sandy has changed our perspective on climate change? Come to Swamptails at George & Martha's and meet other people with the same questions!

The Great Swamp Watershed Association is hosting another Swamptails cocktail mixer at George & Martha's American Grille in Morristown on Wednesday, January 23 from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Our special guest for the evening will be Professor Ken Miller from the Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences at Rutgers University. Ken has done extensive research on different scenarios for sea-level rise here in New Jersey, and has also compiled an astounding "before and after" presentation of the effects of Hurricane Sandy. Here's your chance to relax and chat with an environmental expert and a great group of people who love nature and the Great Swamp.

If this sounds like your kind of crowd, please drop by! Twenty dollars pays for all the hors d'oeuvres you can eat, two cocktails from the bar, a chance at some awesome door prizes, and an opportunity to excel at our Great Swamptails Pub Quiz.

See you at the bar! For more information, visit GreatSwamp.org or call 973-538-3500.

About the Great Swamp Watershed Association. Founded in 1981, the Great Swamp Watershed Association is a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving and protecting the water and land of the 36,000-acre watershed region in New Jersey's Morris and Somerset counties. We work to maintain the beauty and health of our open space, and to monitor and protect five streams: Loantaka Brook, Great Brook, Primrose Brook, Black Brook, and the Upper Passaic—which feed into the Passaic River and provide drinking water to more than a million people.
