

Late buying lifts market

Strong demand for stocks shortly before the close pushed the market higher yesterday. The spurt reversed the irregularity of recent days.

Dow Jones industrials closed up 2.75 on increased volume. SET 10 pt. line

See Pages 10 and 11

Newark Star-Ledger

WEATHER: Rain, high in 40s. Yesterday's high 45 at 1 p.m., low 39 at 4:30 a.m.

FINAL EDITION

VOL. 46, NO. 303

★★

NEWARK, N. J., SATURDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1959

Entered as Second-Class Matter Feb. 14, 1922 at the Post Office at Newark, N. J., Under the Act of March 3, 1879

5 CENTS

Apalachin mob all found guilty

Rally against jetport overflows in Morris

More than 1,500 Morris County residents overflowed Madison High School last night to protest the Port of New York Authority's plan to build a giant jet airport within roaring distance of their homes.

Rallying to the call of 70-year-old Mrs. Charles Baeter, who organized the protest, the demonstrating homeowners flocked to the school by foot and car, backing up traffic for a mile in either direction on busy Ridgedale Ave. in Madison.

They filled to standing room only the 500-seat auditorium, flowed back through the school corridors and spilled out into the street.

CALL EXTRA MEN

Madison police called out a force of extra officers to control the crowds, part of which stood in a drizzle to hear the score of state, county and local officials blast the Port Authority, its jetport and its methods.

The demonstration was called by Mrs. Baeter, a prominent dog breeder and judge, after announcement of the Port Authority

Somerset board opposes jetport

The Somerset Board of Freeholders passed a resolution yesterday opposing the location of a jet airport in Morris County. The vote was 2-0 with Freeholder Robert Adams abstaining on the grounds the action was "premature."

The Morris County Board of Freeholders haven't taken any official stand yet, and it's their airport," Adams declared.

plan to build the $220,000,000 jetport in the Great Swamp.

"It's the most outrageous thing I ever heard—to want to put people out of their homes," she said.

Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen (R-N.J.) declared that the welfare of some 100,000 homeowners is jeopardized by the proposed airport.

GAME RESERVE

He noted that approximately $3 billion worth of property is located within a 12-mile radius of the proposed airport, and added that the so-called swamp is a game reserve without peer short of southern Virginia.

"This area, which will grow in population 85 per cent by 1975, can't afford the sudden imbalance in growth the Port Authority would bring about," he said.

Many officials pointed to the Burlington County site rejected by the Port Authority, despite Burlington's desire to have the jetport located there.

LOOK FOR COOLING

20 face possible 5 years in jail

NEW YORK—A federal jury yesterday convicted 20 delegates to the 1957 Apalachin, N.Y., crime congress of conspiracy in the biggest federal crackdown on racketeers since the arrest of Al Capone. Three of the defendants are from New Jersey.

All 20 defendants, ranging from hoodlums with long records to a man once named "Man of the Year" in Buffalo, N.Y., were found guilty by the jury of eight men and four women of conspiracy to obstruct justice by lying about the true nature of the mysterious meeting at the home of the late Joseph Barbara.

The Justice Department attributed the conviction to teamwork by law enforcement officials from all over the nation and a spokesman hailed the coordinated effort as evidence that "syndicated crime may soon have its death knell."

The jury deliberated slightly more than 24 hours before returning the mass guilty verdict. The court announced sentence would be passed on Jan. 14. Conviction carries a possible maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. All were continued on bail.

The Jerseyans are Anthony P. Biola, 64, of 71 Benvenue Ave.,

